Liquor, to conduct into the Ovarium, by ways unknown to me, chooſing rather to publiſh my Weakneſs, than the leaſt Error in the World.

IV. Of a Venomous Scratch with the Tooth of a Porpos, its Symptoms and Cure. By Dr. Martin Liſter, Fellow of the College of Phyſicians and R. S.

FORTE ex Diſſectione Delphini, ante dies Tres minimùm mortui, ad modum leviter digitum vulneravi ab internâ parte, at citra Sanguinem, ſcilicet ſimplici dentis raſurâ. Nihil autem mali inde ſenſi ad quartum uſq; diem: quo tempore cum quodam livore digitus paululum intumuit ad Articulum: malum indies ſerpebat, adeo ut intra alios quatuor Dies digitos duos infeciſſet; tertiuſq; tandem digitus male ſe habuit. Plurima ex conſilio Chirurgorum adhibui, at parum profuerunt; jam manus correpta eſt, dolorque carpum invaſit, ex hoc autem fomento primùm ſtetit. [℞ aq. ſpermatis ranarum ℥vi, Boli Armen. ℥is. f. Vitrioli albi ℥iiii. m.] calide bis quotidie admotum eſt. Item interdum alio modo [℞ Vitrioli albi combuſti, Boli Armeniac an. ℥iiii. Camph. ℥i. aq. communis ℔ viii. m. f. Collyrium.] Deinde Nutrito impoſito, & ſuperinjecto Emplaſtro ex bolo & Diapalma, convalui ex hoc inuſitato ac improviſo malo. Præter livorem autem, qui ſatis venenum indicabat, moleſtus ac odioſus quidam pruritus, an igniculus dicam, me dies noctesq; vehementer angebat: cuticulam partium correptarum ex toto perdidi: digiti autem ad vires ſuas non niſi poſt aliquot Menſes reſtituti ſunt.
